Last-Minute Trial Exhibits

A large job on a holiday weekend

The Situation

Our client, a mid-sized Sacramento law firm, was preparing for a trial in Fresno. On the Friday before a three-day weekend, a paralegal from the firm picked up a set of 500 new exhibits from Los Angeles that needed to be duplicated by 9:00 AM on Tuesday morning. She called a number of firms from Fresno to Los Angeles; no one could guarantee completion due to the Monday holiday, so she called Capitol Digital.

The Challenge

The project required scanning approximately 7,500 pages and printing two sets. Next the 15,000 pages needed to be carefully put into binders, with tabs and structure that precisely matched the original production. No other litigation support firm had shifts working over the holiday weekend that could deliver by Tuesday's trial.

The Solution

With up to three shifts per day and staff on weekends and holidays, Capitol Digital's large production capacity was designed specifically for the high-stakes document management challenges that are common in litigation. The around-the-clock availability of our team meant that someone was at the office to pick up the client's frantic phone calls on Saturday morning, and to receive the boxes delivered that afternoon.

The Outcome

Our dedicated production staff, working through Sunday and the Monday holiday, managed to scan, print, 3-hole punch, and assemble the thousands of pages into binders in time to deliver the job before 9:00 AM on Tuesday. The client went in to trial that day with all their materials and one less thing to worry about.

Client Testimonial

"The response I always receive from you all is absolutely amazing! Thank you so much for your quick response and the effort that's always professional! (And your forgiveness of my trial jitters!)"
